

Mexican Cantinas, a Real Way to Drink Tequila

In Mexico, cantina traditionally refers to a kind of bar normally frequented only by men to drink tequila and play domino. The cantina's golden age was in the 1940s and 50s, but the oldest cantina, El Nivel, opened in 1855. It was famous for a clientele that ran from presidents to revolutionaries, artists to bureaucrats, poets to street vendors. Among the most famous cantinas are La Opera, which maintains an aura of authenticity; the Salon Tenampa, the centre of mariachi activity; and the Gallo de Oro, a place for getting into the spirit of football matches.

Cantinas were once at the centre of every Mexican man's social life, but today the machista atmosphere has faded away and cantinas are completely women friendly. What is more, the clientele has transformed from domino-playing regulars to the young on a retro night out. Some cantinas retain their long wooden bars and extended stained mirrors, but some others have become colorful, by incorporating iconic elements found in the Mexican culture. Cantinas worth a visit, thanks to their food, sense of history, or both.

Get Started - Start up a Business in Mexico

Mexico welcomes expat entrepreneurs so why not start businesses here. Whichever you work at something you were doing before or turn a hobby into a money-making activity, there are a number of areas you should consider:

1. Viability of your business plan: Dreams are seldom fulfilled without a plan. A Business Coach helps creating a structured and realistic plan to move ahead. He also ensures that all your decisions are based upon facts and figures.
2. Update your Migratory Status: You will need to obtain the appropriate visa or work permit, so you can work in your new business. Specific requirements can vary depending on what kind of project you plan to start.
3. Legal Requirements: Ensure that your proposition can be a success whilst remaining within the legal requirements. Another important step is to register the business at the Federal Taxpayer's Registry.
4. Marketing: Consider strategies in marketing, covering a range of aspects, including advertising, public relations, sales, and promotions.
5. Taxation: An accountant will help with local taxation to ensure that you pay the right amounts of money to the authorities at the right time.

Starting a company will be challenging, but do not let this overwhelm you. Meet Point is ready to support you on your road to potential success. Thousands of expats have successfully set up a business in Mexico. Why not you?
