

Bernal Peak

Must to Experience in Mexico - Click here to Live Peña Bernal!

Peña de Bernal, the biggest rocky formation of Mexico governs the landscape in San Sebastian Bernal, Querétaro. This monolith forms an essential part of the picturesque landscape surrounding this small town used as a scenario for various movies and catalogued as one of the Magical Villages.

At 350 meters it is the fourth-tallest monolith in the world, after the Rock of Gibraltar, Mount Augustus (Western Australia), and Sugarloaf Mountain (Rio de Janeiro, Brazil). The monolith has gained fame during the last years to practice various adventure sports over there, such as trekking, climbing and rappel.

Its emblematic appearance can be clearly distinguished from far away and embodies devotion and mysticism. Many people make a pilgrimage to the highest point hikeable, visiting a little chapel about halfway up. For other people Peña de Bernal has turned into a meeting place for those who believe in its energetic virtues. Our recommendation: stay at Casa Mateo - Hotel Boutique they have the best view and restaurant in Peña Bernal, absolutely stunning.

To Live Does Not Require Effort, Fulfillment Requires a Challenge

by Rony Zagursky, Expat Life Coach

After the sperm fertilizes the egg, that special being did not require a great effort to achieve life. This process continues along the human's being life, where living does not require effort. You might be thinking that living requires a lot of effort, and I'm sure that you make an effort to enjoy life, but not to live.

Living is effortless. As proof, we can see, breathe, think, and blink. Doing these things does not require any effort on your part. It is not until you face a challenge, no matter how small it is, you will experience a feeling of fullness, pleasure and enjoyment. I am not saying that you need to suffer in order to feel pleasure. What I mean is that when we take things for granted we don't appreciate them. It is not until when we realize that these things are not “forever” that we value them. If you do not believe me, ask someone who has overcome from an illness how much appreciates health. Continue reading
